JAPAN HAS PLACED in Great Britain an order for twenty-five passenger airships, costing $50,000 apiece, each able to carry twenty passengers. These British-made Japanese machines will carry two engines developing 1,000 horsepower.

The Japanese are friendly and they are not worried over talk in the oil trial about serious trouble with Japan two or three years ago.

AND IT IS fortunate that Japan is so friendly to us. For if they ever started a non-stop flight their ships wouldn't come down. This poor little country has a few ships that can go up, but they can't stay up.

FIN. COM. CHAIRMAN FAVORS REDUCING MEMBERSHIP TO FIVE

Complete reorganization of the board of Overseers of the Public Welfare was prophesied today by Mayor Nichols as he announced that he would appoint a committee to investigate the whole problem of distribution of aid to poor families in the city. The committee of investigation will comprise prominent business men, representatives of welfare associations and persons familiar with poor relief problems in Boston.

While Mayor Nichols today was making plans for abolishing the Board of Overseers of the Public Welfare, if possible, as a result of their attempted slashing of allowances to the city's poor, Chairman Charles L. Carr of the Finance Commission urged reduction of the number of overseers from twelve to five.

Bitterness held full sway in city officialdom, with Mayor Nichols placing blame squarely on the overseers for cutting the pittance of the poor, and several members of the welfare board charging the Mayor with "passing the buck."

Chairman Carr disclosed that the Finance Commission has already filed with the State legislature a recommendation for a change in the type of poor relief board, calling the present organization antiquated.

"I am not in favor of changing to a one-man board, this man to be paid," said Carr, commenting on Mayor Nichols' idea of getting the legislature to authorize handling of Boston's poor problem by a single executive at a salary of $7,500.

BOARD IS TOO LARGE

"With 12 members as at present, responsibility is divided, as the present instance shows. Originally, as we have informed the legislature, 12 were appointed because there

OXFORD FACTORY FIRE CAUSES $200,000 LOSS

Oxford, Dec. 9 (A.P.).—Fire which started in the C. A. Grosvenor Slipper Co. factory in Oxford Centre destroyed the plant and damaged several other buildings before firemen from Webster and Worcester brought the blaze under control.

The damage is estimated at $200,000.

While the fire was at its height, electric wires and telephone wires came down, plunging the town into darkness and cutting it off from outside comunication for several hours.

The cause of the fire was not determined.

The Lyman Kilton Electrical Supply store and Garland Grain Company were the most extensively damaged of the other buildings that caught fire.

Several families left their homes when sparks ignited their dwellings but this danger was minimized when the householders formed a volunteer brigade and kept vigil on the roofs of nearby buildings.

The slipper factory employed 200 hands.

DOHENY, WIFE AND SON DEFEND 'LOAN' TO FALL

Washington, Dec. 9.—The Dohenys, father, mother and son, told the jury in a dramatic session in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial today that there was no basis for the government's charge that the elder Doheny, the multi-millionaire oil man, had bribed ex-secretary of the interior Albert B. Fall in connection with the lease of the rich Elk Hills naval oil reserve.

For the first time the elder Doheny disclosed that in 1925 more than three years after the $100,000 "loan" was made, Fall gave him as security a block of ranch stock valued at twice the principal of the debt.

First Mrs. Doheny, then Edward L. Doheny, Jr., and finally Doheny himself said the famous $100,000 loan to Fall was a private transaction pure and simple between old friends, and that the money was not given with any idea that the elder Doheny would be favored in the oil leases.

As he began his testimony the

New York, Dec. 9.—Trial of Count Ludwig Salm's suit for separation from the former Millicent Rogers, $40,000,000 Standard Oil heiress, was abruptly halted today, ostensibly to give the Austrian nobleman time to marshal evidence to prove that he is "morally fit and financially able to support" his two-year-old son Peter, whose custody he is seeking.

Washington, Dec. 9 (A.P.).—The nation has attained a record level of income and there is likely to be no ebbing of the high tide of prosperity, Secretary Mellon reported to Congress today in his annual review of treasury activities.

At the same time he virtually closed the door to revision of the French debt settlement and declared that prohibition enforcement, also a part of the work of the Treasury Department, was making good progress, but should be stimulated by the passage of pending bills strengthening the enforcement statutes.

He urged legislation to permit disposition of the sequestered German property and to renew the charters

33 RESCUED, 36 STILL BURIED IN MINE BLAST

Francisco, Ind., Dec. 9.—Thirty-six men remained entombed in mine No. 2 of the Francisco Coal Mining Company today following a dust explosion while the day shift was going down into the mine.

Thirty-three men have been brought up alive, of these 17 were seriously burned nad have been rushed to the Methodist Hospital at Princeton, Ind.

The fate of the 36 entombed men was not definitely ascertained, although reports were current that a number of them were dead. Rescue crews were working feverishly to reach the men who are said to be 286 feet below the surface.

J. R. Henderson, manager of the mine, expressed confidence that most of the entombed miners would be rescued in a few hours, although he admitted no noe knew the extent of the cave-in.

"There are 125 competent rescue workers mobilized for the work," Henderson said. "We are sending down rescue gangs in shifts of 25 men."

THEY WILL NOT SUFFER FROM THE COLD OR GO HUNGRY, MAYOR NICHOLS SAYS
All of Boston's children in need will be cared for, is Mayor Nichols promise. Robert, Francis, Fred and George Milkine of George street, Roxbury, welcomed the news.

were 12 city wards, but the number 12 has no significance now and of course having one for every ward now is out of the question.

"Several large cities have paid executives, but we are inclined to believe Boston's problems can be handled best by unpaid overseers, provided there are not too many of them. With a one man board, at a good salary, there would be too much political competition for the place.

"I wish to emphasize the necessity of strict investigation of poor relief cases. For example, it is doubtless true that money could be saved in the city if a check-up were made to ascertain if all children of 15, who have started working since their families first received city aid, are turning in money to their mothers and thus decreasing the amount the city has to give in aid."

Several board members are reported ready to resign their unpaid jobs, while Mayor Nichols is formulating a new system whereby one man, at a salary of $7,500, will replace the "unwieldy" board of twelve.

Feeling between Mayor Nichols and certain board members originated, it was learned, at the time that he refused the request of the overseers for an additional $200,000 to finish the year with, giving them only $150,000.

BOARD DISPLEASED.

The board of overseers were displeased at being forced to seek measures of economy to cut down their expenses to the amount allowed, while the mayor was displeased at learning that the disbursement of the poor-relief and mothers' aid branch of the city government were so greatly in excess of the original appropriation.

It is said that he threatened at that time to abolish the board if he could find a way to do so. The present trouble has only heaped coals on the fire of bitterness, and speculation was rife at City Hall as to whether it will end with the overseers resigning in a body or Mayor Nichols going to the State Legislature for authority to revamp the system of poor aid.

PUT IT UP TO MAYOR.

"If the Mayor can give us funds now to pay full allowances, why couldn't he have given us the amount we asked last month?" several members are reported to have asked at the special board meeting at which the Mayor's communication was received, instructing them to restore full allowances to poor families.

"Have you made a formal report to Mayor Nichols of the intention of the overseers to accept his instructions?" Chairman Dimeon E. Hecht was asked today.

"I don't know anything about that," he said bitterly. "If anything is done it won't get into the newspapers."

"Is it true certain members voiced a desire to resign?"

"I have nothing whatever to say on that score."

Other members of the board of Overseers of the Public Welfare said that Chairman Hecht, if anybody, would have to speak officially for them. Unofficially several defended the high expenditures of the relief department this year, pointing out that living expenses are high and declaring that private charities leave more and more of the relief work to the city each succeeding year.

SAVE WRECKED SCHOONER

With a mast split, two head-sails gone and her windlass disabled, the three-masted schooner Albert H. Willis was towed into Boston today, a belated refugee of the storm.

Captain Norton and his crew of five men were taking the schooner and its cargo of plaster from Cheverie, N. S., to New York when the storm roared off the land and slapped the craft.

They tried to ride out the storm off the Isle of Shoals with an unidentified four-master swinging a mile or so away and apparently more fortunate than they.

At the height of the storm the head-sails cracked out and the mast split.

The schooner, for which Rogers & Webb of State street are Boston agents, was towed in today and anchored below Castle Island.

The alleged plots were revealed through reading of confidential documents from the files of the Labor and Justice Departments.

elder Doheny showed plainly the weakening effects of the arm infection which has kept him in bed much of the time for the last week. He spoke softly and deliberately.

HOGAN SETS STAGE.

Frank J. Hogan, chief of defense counsel, devoted several minutes to setting the stage for the witness. He presented numerous documents including the four power Pacific treaty, to make references easy for his client.

No picturesque detail of Doheny's varied career was overlooked in the preliminary questioning. He related how he had been successively a surveyor in the old West, a book agent, waiter in a restaurant at Wichita, Kas., driver of "shavetail" mules, trapper, pioneer meat packer and mining prospector first in the Black Hills.

"In 1880," he said, "I found the first mine—the Dream. Mr. Fall at that time was prospecting there. It was then I met him."

IN PIONEER DAYS.

He worked also on the Red River survey between the Texas Panhandle and Oklahoma, a subject of litigation ever since, and once held a position on a vigilantes committee, which set out to break up a horse thief ring in the Indian Territory.

Later, at Kingston, N. M., Fall began the practice of law, and Doheny, crippled by a fall down a mine shaft, studied law. When he first went to Kingston, however, Fall was a laborer in the Gray Eagle Mine.

But more than three years after the loan was made, Doheny said, he received "security" from Fall. That was in March, 1924. He identified thirty-three shares of stock in the Tres Rios Cattle & Land Company as the "Security." This is Fall's New Mexican ranch corporation.

The security was given more than a year after the Senate oil inquiry in which Doheny first told of the loan. He said he had cleared up in his mind many details of the transaction since his appearance before the committee. His memory had been helped by a review of his Senate testimony and personal records, he said.

The net value of the thirty-three shares of stock turned over by Fall was estimated at $200,000.

from the British missionary, Doctor Clement Sctokley, telling of terrible conditions in the city and urging that every effort be made to get permission for the hospital staff to leave the city.

"We are truly in a desperate strait. Nothing but starvation stares us in the face," the latter says. "Hundreds are dying in the city daily and it is impossible to buy food. You cannot understand the state of affairs; it is just awful. It is difficult to bury all that die of starvation and many lie in the streets for days unburied."

The letter added that foreigners could hold out for a fortnight if allowed to keep the little food that they had. The supplies, the letter said, were shared with the hospital staff and could not last long.

There have been reports that the siege has been raised following retreat of the troops of General Liu Chen Hua, the besieger.

Foochow, Dec. 2 (A.P.).—A relief investigating committee reported here today that 90 out of 97 outlying villages invaded by troops of General Chang-Yi, northern leader, have been destroyed as the result of their efforts to fight their way out of Cantonese surroundings.

The population of the area invaded is about 100,000, and more than 70,000 of these are homeless and destitute. Immediate relief is deemed necessary. Cold weather and the exorbitant price of rice are increasing the misery of the stricken thousands.

had it that negotiations looking to a financial settlement out of court were under way. It developed yesterday that Col. Henry H. Rogers, multi-millionaire father-in-law of the Count, had offered him $12,000 a year to keep the Atlantic Ocean between himself and his bride. This offer the Count refused.

TO PROVE FITNESS.

Just what new suggestions for ending the legal battle had been put forward could not be learned. Neither Albert C. Conway, attorney for Countess Millicent nor Herman Goodstein, the nobleman's lawyer would discuss the report.

In moving for an adjournment Mr. Goodstein informed the court that it had apparently become necessary for his client to prove his fitness and ability to care for little Peter Salm and asked that the proceedings be held up indefinitely to permit him to summon witnesses to this end.

Attorney Conway was agreeable, but Justice Levy was unwilling to take an adjournment without fixing a definite date for resuming the trial. He suggested Jan. 15. Consultation of the calendar, however, showed that date fell upon Saturday and Jan. 17 was finally agreed to.

The Count, as smartly groomed as ever, was in court ready to resume the witness stand for further cross-examination when the application for adjournment put a halt to the proceedings today. The Countess, on the opening day of the trial, did not appear.

BABSON SEES BOOM FOR N. E.

1927 PROMISES BIG SHOE AND COTTON YEAR

An era of renewed prosperity for New England, with the shoe and leather industry booming and with cotton mills running at full time—

This is the predictions for 1927 by no less an authority than Roger Babson, head of the Babson Statistical Institute and world famous economist and statistician.

Speaking at the noon-day luncheon of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Babson urged Boston business men to be of good cheer. He declared that while 1927 would see business somewhat easier than the present year in most parts of the country, New England would experience a decided business improvement.

BETTER YEAR IN 1927.

"Statistics compiled by our organization," said Mr. Babson, "suggest strongly that New England will have a better year in 1927 than in 1926.

"The readjustment in the shoe industry, the low price of cotton and certain other factors strongly suggest that New England will be better off next year.

Mr. Babson's address was as sweet music to the ears of the Chamber of Commerce members, for the noted statistician has of late a reputation for scrupulously refraining from injecting any excess optimism in his public utterances.

Regarding the remainder of the country, Mr. Babson declared that the coming year will show distinctly lower stock market prices, somewhat

JOHN D. SO ILL HE CAN'T TALK

OIL MAN NEEDS ASSISTANCE TO WALK

New York, Dec. 9—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., is on his way to Ormond, Fla., today in a private car for his annual Winter vacation. The aged multi-millionaire-founder of Standard Oil is in a weakened condition.

Friends who saw the famous "John D." were shocked at his appearance. He could scarcely walk without assistance.

The car was stocked with cases of thermos bottles and several fireless cookers which carried prepared food for the aged capitalist.

Efforts were made to have Mr. Rockefeller's health appear so good that in spite of his eighty-seven years he has recently been taking an active interest in the business from which he retired a quarter of a century ago, but when a reporter sought to interview him on the way to the train he was stopped by a member of the party, who said:

"Don't you see he is too weak to talk?"

The multi-millionaire was bundled up in a long ulster and wore a heavy cap with ear tabs.

UNDERWORLD IN ALLIANCE WITH 'UPPER TEN'

New York, Dec. 9 (A.P.).—The underworld has joined hands with the "upper ten" to further the Marshall Stillman movement, which has as its aim the rehabilitation of criminals and reduction of crime.

The two extremes reached their pact by meeting last night in the grand ballroom of the Commodore Hotel, but six pairs of amateur prizefighters, one of negroes, took precedence over Park avenue rectors, State and city judges and social service workers who spoke. The "underworld" was represented by Ted Lewis, Billy Lustic, Johnny Webber and Joe Eismann, former East Side "bad men," but now reformed.

Among the representatives of the upper ten were John B. Taylor, president of the Silk Travelers' Association, and Judge Gustave R. Hartmann.

Louis Eismann, of the East Siders, said he thought the Baumes law, making life sentences mandatory for fourth offenders in New York State, was doomed. He said a number of his friends who were ready to "step out" (go on a criminal undertaking) had said the new law only would serve to make them more determined not to be taken alive if they face arrest.

RABTREE TAX BILLS BROUGHT INTO COURT

The records of early Tombstone, riz., when lots sold for a song and quatters" reaped financial har- ests, were read today as part of he evidence in Suffolk Probate ourt to establish the claim of Mrs. arlotta Cockburn to the millions of otta Crabtree.

An entry on Nov. 17, 1881, on the ssessor's roll showed that Mrs. lary A. Crabtree, who the claim- nt says was her grandmother and he mother of her father, Jack A. rabtree, was assessed for some ourteen lots in Tombstone.

The lot where the Crabtree cabin was built, according to counsel's con- ention, was included in the taxes which Mrs. Crabtree paid. There was also an entry that Ed Bullock and Jack Crabtree, partners, paid a tax of $30 on land valued at $3,- 000 in 1882. All this was read from he deposition of O. Gibson, who in 1925, was mayor of Tombstone.

Three depositions on the law of Tombstone were offered by James M. Hoy, counsel for Mrs. Cockburn. Judge Prest refused to allow them on the ground that in May of this year a statute was passed prohibiting the court from hearing evidence on foreign law, other than to take judicial notice of it.

North End youngsters will enjoy their free hot dogs on New Year's Day, despite the fact that the "hot dog man," Axel Bjorklund, who has made the free dogs a tradition, has been sadly used by fate and mean thieves recently.

"But it makes no difference," said Axel, "the youngsters didn't have anything to do with my losses, and they are not going to suffer. On New Year's Day I shall be, God willing, at Blackstone and Hanover streets, and every youngster will have his wienie."

Catholics Plan to Aid Near East Sufferers

THE FIRST of the series of regional conferences to be held in connection with the drive of the Catholic Near East Welfare Association takes place today at the archdiocesan office on Granby street.

Formed at the direction of Pope Pius, the Catholic Near East Welfare Association merges all American Catholic bodies working in this country on behalf of the destitute in Russia and the near east.

THE NECESSITY for such help to the indigent youth of Russia was emphasized by Professor Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice-president of Georgetown University, president of the association and former director-general of the papal relief mission to Russia.

"From my own personal observation," says Prof. Walsh, "I can unhesitatingly corroborate the statement of Madame Krupskaya, widow of Lenin, that about 7,000,000 children in Russia are today growing up without care, simply because the government has not the money with which to finance its educational plans."

WESLEYAN STUDENTS ASK COURSE ON WAR

Middletown, Conn., Dec. 9.—The Wesleyan undergraduates have voted to petition the faculty for a course in war, to be conducted by the department of history.

There would be no military training or instruction in war tactics. The course, as suggested, would give an outline history of wars, their causes as well as instruction in principles which make for peace. President James L. McConaughy will take the matter under advisement.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Members of Boston's World of Fashion Keenly Anticipating Annual Assembly Ball Invitations

CARDS FOR THE ASSEMBLY BALL, the Winter's supreme function, go out very soon and, in consequence, Boston's World of Fashion and Wealth is experiencing its annual flutter of expectation. Will or will not Milady's morning mail bring the superlatively coveted invitation—ah, that's the question! For to have one's name on the Assembly list is to carry the hall-mark that swings wide innermost social portals.

TO SOME THE ASSEMBLY is a sort of family inheritance, handed down from one generation to another. Others have successfully aspired to the Olympian heights whereon dwell the chosen ones. To those others not yet quite "in" a card to the Assembly is the Alpha and Omega of social ambitions.

IT'S A LOVELY FORMAL FUNCTION with a cotillion, this Assembly Ball as guided in the way it should go by those two recognized autocrats, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer and Samuel Hooper Hooper. It's come to be the Brahmin Caste's annual gesture to things as they were; toward good old days of clawhammers and white gloves, elaborate ball frocks and a blaze of family jewels for balls and parties; long, long before the rising tide of syncopation brought in its train informal dinner and supper dances, a casualness toward social amenities and a stag line of enormous proportions.

ALL THE LUSCIOUS FRUIT, every purple grape and brilliant pomegranate, all the rosy-cheeked apples and rose-splashed pears that formed a decorative motif for the Higginson ball last evening at the Somerset have this morning been taken to hospitals hereabouts to give invalids and shut-ins a treat. To use fruits thus for a ballroom decoration is unusual, to say the least, but as arranged for Miss Joan Higginson's debut party it was, to say the least, strikingly effective.

THE FRUIT WAS ARRANGED AGAINST enormous wreaths of smilax, and two wreaths adorned the corner where Mr. Francis Lee Higginson and his daughter greeted their hundreds of guests. The other corners of the ballroom, too, had their wreaths, and otherwise the decorations were very simple in the extreme, merely cedar trees banked here and there. The debutante's gown was simply done, too. It was a sky blue crepe with flower applique of bright rose, a line of the flowers marking the surplice crossing of the bodice.

MISS FANNY DIAL

FROM THE ORCHIDS CLUSTERED on her shoulder to the tips of gilt shoes, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr., of Chicago, was a smart figure. Her gown was sophistication itself, a model of silver gilt, cleverly draped, and she flirted an enormous fan of ostrich plumes fully a yard long. She was one of the Higginson clan come back to do Miss Joan honor. Mrs. George H. Lyman, Jr. (Eleanor Higginson) was in rose brocade.

MRS. FREDERIC SPRAGUE GOODWIN, aunt of the debutante and a dinner hostess of the evening (she entertained specially for the bud and her set), wore a crepe frock of bright tile red, figured in sequins. Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge carried a plumed fan of ostrich that exactly matched the colors in her beaded frock. Miss Anne Ayer, who makes her bow tomorrow at the Copley-Plaza, was in pale shell pink crepe.

PINE BRANCHES from Aiken are Mrs. Bayard Warren's special contribution again this year to the sale at Mrs. Richard C. Curtis' next Tuesday to benefit the Children's Island Sanatorium. Childish hands at the Sanatorium have gilded the cones, and they make just the jolliest sort of Xmas decoration imaginable. Toys made by the children may be had also, and bijou gifts to fit into the Christmas stocking.

OF COURSE, Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield is always closely identified with whatever is forward to benefit her cherished charity, and Mesdames George S. West, Bayard Warren, Robert Tappan, Roger C. Cutler, George Peabody Gardner, Jr., Thomas Aldrich are some of her associates. Mrs. Curtis' home is at No. 103 Marlboro street. If well wishers wish to contribute they may send checks to Augustus Hemenway, Jr., who is treasurer.

A CAREFREE COMPANY of voyagers, bound for the blue and gold Mediterranean, sailed away in the mid-week on the steamship Conte Rosso. Mrs. Henry Gilman Nichols is one such, following a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Kane Cobb, Jr. (Elsie Nichols), at the Cobbs' Brookline establishment. Mrs. Clarence B. Poor, Miss Mary B. Poor and Mrs. George D. Sargent of "Old Meadows," Hamilton, have sailed away to the Azure coast. The Horatio Lamb family has packed its boxes for a Winter abroad, and sailed on the Conte Rosso.

THEY ARE Mrs. Horatio A. Lamb, Miss Aimee Lamb, Miss Rosamond Lamb and Miss Edith D. Lamb. William L. Raymond of the Union Club is making a short dash overseas to spend the Christmas holidays in Paris, and the New Year will find him sailing homeward. Professor William R. Arnold, Mrs. Arnold and Miss Margaret Arnold, who hail from Cambridge, also are making this pre-Christmas crossing on the Rosso.

AFTER A GOTHAM CONCERT triumph as the magic open sesame to favor in other smaller and not less critical musical centers, Miss Leslie Frick of Baltimore comes very soon to Boston.

MRS. NICHOLS IN NEW ROLE

As cheerful as if the unexpected storm of last Sunday had not wrecked her honeymoon plans, Mrs. Carrie Williams Nichols, first lady of Boston, is already well settled in her new role as head of the household of Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols.

The Mayor and his bride were just well started on their honeymoon when the storm broke and threatened to tie up traffic completely in the Hub.

The Mayor just had to see his $400,000 worth of new snow fighting equipment in operation, so the honeymoon was called off temporarily.

Now, back in Boston, the bride has laid aside her trosseau in favor of the housewife's garb.

JAILED YOUTH GIVES TIP

Search for Peter "Red" Curry, alleged accomplice of James Gleason in the murder of James Monaghan, Medford store-keeper, shifted from Boston to New York today, Gleason giving the information that led to the new trail of his pal.

For several days the local police have searched in various haunts seeking Curry and two other young men who are to be questioned about the crime, with Gleason directing them from his cell in East Cambridge jail.

In that same jail a pathetic drama was enacted when Gleason received a visit from his father, a wounded war veteran now at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea. On the very night that young Gleason, according to his own confession, was committing his crime the senior Gleason was himself the victim of hold-up men, who took $41 and then threw him back a dollar.

Plunge Is Fatal

KILLED BY FALL

Mrs. Louise Hewitt, ex-patient at Stockbridge Sanitarium, who met death in mysterious six-story plunge in New York today.

New York, Dec. 9 (A.P.)—Mrs. Louise Hewitt, 25-year-old wife of Abram Hewitt, Oxford graduate, now taking law at Columbia University, today jumped or fell from a window of her sixth-floor apartment in East Twenty-fourth street, suffering injuries that caused her death a few hours later in a hospital.

Mrs. Hewitt returned several days ago from a sanitarium at Stockbridge, where she had been treated for nervous breakdown.

Mrs. Hewitt was a descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt and of John Jay, first chief justice of the United States. Her husband is a great-grandson of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union, and a grandson of the late Mayor Hewitt of New York.

WILL ROGERS FOR 'TIGHTER PANTS, BROADER IDEALS'

New York, Dec. 9 (A.P.).—What the youth of this country needs, as Will Rogers sees it, is narrower pants and broader ideals.

The humorist delivered his opinion in his only New York appearance of the season at a charity affair. He compared himself with Bernard Shaw on the grounds that "we both know the world's all wrong, but don't know what's the matter with it."

"In this country," he said, "we build three golf courses to every airplane. The government isn't sure about aviation, so it's going to wait two more years to find out whether airships are practical. We are the only nation in the world that uses our air for speaking purposes only.

"The next war's going to be in the air. They're not going to shoot anything at you, they're just goin' to drop it on you."

Taking up farm relief, Mr. Rogers observed that "now they are saying what the farmers need is co-operative marketing. If they can't get as much for their crops as it costs to raise them, the farmers ought to sell together. When the check comes back then they'll be able to cheer each other up."

Mr. Rogers declared himself in favor of college because "it takes the children away from home just when they get to the arguing age," and said he would go to college himself if he had a coonskin coat.

NORTHCLIFFE GAVE STOCK TO SECRETARY

London, Dec. 9 (I.N.S.)—Miss Louise Owen, formerly secretary to Lord Northcliffe, testifying today in the suit over the provisions of Lord Northcliffe's will, said she was a beneficiary under the will and had always had from Lord Northcliffe certain other payments. She said Lord Northcliffe in 1918 gave her a thousand ordinary shares in his newspaper corporation saying they were worth $25 each.

One of the questions in dispute is whether the price paid by Lord Rothermere for the property of his brother was sufficient, and the value Lord Northcliffe placed upon them.

'BUTLER JEWEL ROBBER' HELD

New York, Dec. 9 (I.N.S.)—Joseph Freid, known to police as the famous "Butler jewel robber," was arrested today in connection with the sensational robbery of a Washington society matron.

He is also suspected of complicity in a number of recent New York jewel robberies, and is said to have served a number of terms in prison.

The charge on which Fried is held for extradition is the robbery of Mrs. Norman Williams. While she was entertaining a woman guest last March 7, four armed men suddenly walked into her drawing room, bound and gagged Mrs. Williams and her guest, as well as seven servants, and took jewels worth $2,000 from a hidden wall safe known to few persons. The day before Mrs. Williams had removed $1,000,000 in gems to a safe deposit vault. Fried was butler in the house at the time and disappeared immediately after the crime.

ROB HOSTESS TO MARIE

New York, Dec. 9 (I.N.S.—Police today were without a clue in their search for the thief who stole gems worth $32,000 from an automobile owned by Mrs. George C. Treadwell of Albany on Nov. 30. News of the theft was not made public until today.

Mrs. Treadwell had just returned to New York from an automobile trip through West Virginia with Queen Marie of Roumania.

The jewels were in a large suitcase and were stolen while she was making a telephone call.

PROSPEROUS 1927 FORECAST FOR U. S. BY MELLON

of the Federal Reserve system, and advocated passage of the McFadden branch banking bill without the Hull amendment restricting branch banking in the future.

Prosperity Assured

The financial and industrial outlook received the lion's share of attention in the report.

Mr. Mellon declared the domestic situation was such that "we can look forward to another satisfactory year."

The strength of the prosperity, he added, is the "broadness of its base" and while spending has increased, so have savings accounts, life insurance writings and the purchasing of sound securities by small investors.

The nation's prosperity is shared by the Treasury, the Secretary reported, but he again demanded a year's test of the new revenue law before sanctioning any revision of the tax rates.

He endorsed as a permanent policy, however, the proposal of President Coolidge to return to the taxpayers the large surpluses of the government such as will be available this year.

No Debt Cancellation

In suggesting that Congress make no move to continue the life of the War Debt Funding Commission, which expires next February, Mr. Mellon declared the work of the Commission had virtually been completed.

He did not even mention the possibility of further negotiations with France, which appears dissatisfied with the agreement effected by her representatives in consultation with the commission, and has not yet ratified it.

He emphasized this government has maintained a consistent policy against cancellation and quoted President Wilson to show there had been no thought of cancellation.

The commission has negotiated settlements representing $9,811,094,094, or 97 per cent. of the total, the secretary said. While Greece has not concluded a settlement, he suggested that if negotiations are necessary these might be conducted by such members of the commission as are available.

Reporting progress in the enforcement of the prohibition law, Mr. Mellon declared that, with the legislation requested, "the Treasury feels confident its reorganized force, given the essential co-operation and assistance of the Department of Justice, will be able, in the future, to achieve even greater effectiveness.

He believed the reorganized prohibition staff under the direction of Assistant Secretary Andrews had in the last year effectively stopped rum smuggling and had gained the upper hand on the diversion of industrial alcohol and illicit distilling.

U. S. Debt Reduction

He emphasized that the Federal forces were centering their attention on the source of supplies and expected local authorities to reassume their responsibilities for law enforcement.

Pronouncing the debt situation of the government sound, Mr. Mellon pointed out that in the seven years since the close of the war the public debt has been cut by $5,841,289,845 to $19,643,216,315 on last July 1. A reduction of $872,977,572 was made in the last year.

"We have worked hard and we have progressed," the Secretary continued. "During the year commodity prices generally have declined slightly and farm prices have not yet been restored to their relative position as compared with all prices.

"There is little unemployment and wages are good. Industry is active. There is a close margin between costs and prices which has made competition severe, but due to the great volume of business and quantity production profits have been large in the aggregate.

"The most notable improvement has been the restoration of the railroads to their proper place in the community."

To Save 32 Billions

Regarding American securities, Secretary Mellon's report says:

"The suggestion has been made that the expenditures of the government could be decreased by altering the sinking fund provision and the use of the proceeds of repayments of foreign loans. These provisions were adopted by Congress during and after the war, and on the faith of them every government obligation sold by the Treasury since that time has been taken by the American people. I need not again express my opinion that the United States will never repudiate a contract made with the purchasers in good faith of its securities.

"Aside from the ethics of such repudiation, which is controlling, business sense demands an early retirement of the national debt.

"The total interest charges at 4¼ per cent. on a $25,000,000,000 indebtedness retired uniformly over a 25-year term is $16,000,000,000; over a 62-year term interest charges would be over $46,000,000,000, or nearly three times as much interest to be paid over the longer term as over the shorter term.

Installment Buying

Mr. Mellon endorsed the principles of installment buying and the making of foreign loans, with proper caution in each. Installment buying is no menace, he said, if the article has a real and permanent value and if the payments are not made too light in an effort to stimulate consumption in times of decline.

He said the Treasury was not passing upon the soundness of particular foreign loans, a problem entirely for private bankers.

"If a foreign loan is productive— l by that I mean that the debtor t of the use of the money bor- ed can repay the principal, the rest and make a profit for him- —then I think foreign loans are nd," he said.

Varning against the trend in in- ments and loans on securities out a proportionate increase in rt term commercial bills, how- r, he continued:

"Since it is the latter which are the most easily liquidated, we are gradually noting a decline in assets which may be rediscounted at the Federal Reserve banks, and thus in what may be called the liquidity of bank assets.

"This trend has in no way endangered the strength of our banking system, but it is a movement which may require care lest it go too far."

He also suggested that there might have been some overbuilding, but called attention that this and other unhealthy situations, including the "land boom in Florida," had subsided without serious injury. Likewise, the bumper crop may hurt the growers temporarily, he said, but on the other hand it will give the textile industry an opportunity for "recovery."

Mr. Mellon said he had no objection to returning this year's prospective surplus by a credit to income taxpayers of 30 per cent. on each of their first two installments next year, a proposal presented to Congress by President Coolidge.

Mellon Predicts Prosperity for Cotton Mills

A BUMPER cotton crop has materially decreased the price of cotton, but plans for withholding a portion of the crop and for its orderly marketing are already well under way and the financing for the purpose is available. The textile industry, which has been unprofitable for the last few years, will have an opportunity for recovery in the low cost of cotton.—From the annual report of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon.

COUNCIL O. K.'S FOREIGN POLICY OF MUSSOLINI

Rome, Dec. 9.—Premier Mussolini submitted to the council of ministers the program of his foreign policy. The plans were kept a profound secret but were unanimously approved.

Count Volpi, finance minister, speaking in the Senate, discussed the popular loan, predicting its overwhelming success and the certainty of stabilizing the Italian currency.

Premier Mussolini declared that not only prices of food stuffs but also of metals and building materials have fallen from 20 to 80 per cent, as a result of the drive against the high cost of living.

YES, MOONSHINERS ARE BUSY IN KENTUCKY

Ravenna, Ky., Dec. 9.—Its scientifically impossible, but you couldn't prove it to those panicky Kentuckians.

A large collie dog, unusually friendly, nosed a pint of nitro-glycerine which it found being heated for use in oil welling drilling. And someone swore the dog lapped up the pint.

Then there was a scramble. Feeling playful, and with tail wagging, the dog sought to make friends. But the would-be friends scattered whenever the collie appeared. As the collie was quite fleet of limb, and believed it was all a game, most of those who fled, prayed as they ran.

This game of "Here he comes, there we go" kept up for some time with Kentucky in a panic, but no one was injured and the collie didn't slow up. Physicians say a drop of the nitro-glycerine would have been sufficient to put the collie in [illegible] if he had lapped any of it.

Vote Favors Poincare

Paris, Dec. 9 (I.N.S.)—The chamber of deputies gave Premier Poincare a vote of confidence today, by 356 to 201, maintaining credits that are provided for the Rhineland occupation troops against the opposition of the communists.

500 B. U. GRADS WILL ATTEND LAW MEETING

Nearly 500 graduates of the Boston University School of Law will be present at the annual meeting of the Law School Association on February 8 when former Govenor Charles S. Whitman of New York, president of the American Bar Association, will be a speaker. Chief Justices of the Massachusetts Supreme and Superior Courts and Judge John S. Burke, retiring judge of the Boston Municipal Court will also be guests of honor.

A dinner and meeting will be at the Copley-Plaza, with the B. U. Band, the B. U. Orchestra and the university men's glee club as guests to provide the musical program.

FERDINAND IS WORSE; PLAN 3D OPERATION

Bucharest, Dec. 9.—King Ferdinand's condition has taken a more serious turn.

Physicians stated today that it may be necessary to perform a third operation on the King. Dr. Hartmann who had planned to leave for Paris after the second operation yesterday, has deferred his departure.

The King does not realize how serious his condition is, but members of his family have been advised that he may take a critical turn at any moment.

Former Crown Prince Carol is likely to return to Rumania at an early date, says a dispatch to the Trans-Alpine News Agency.

"Queen Marie, who seems more and more mistress of the situation," the dispatch adds, "already has succeeded in making it understood that the decision of last January accepting Carol's renunciation of the throne must be reconsidered and his position again examined into.

"It is possible that he will be invited to return at an early date even before the end of the week. It is further believed a new regency council will be appointed before the King becomes worse."

BANK MAN ARRESTED IN $100,000 SHORTAGE

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 9 (A.P.).—Rush H. Parke, bookkeeper of the American Savings Bank and Trust Company, who has been missing since last week, after a shortage of over $100,000 was found in his accounts, was arrested here early today.

TRIO ARRAIGNED IN DEATH OF VETERAN

Milford, N. H., Dec. 9.—The three suspects detained in connection with the death of Everett A. Cram, 79, Civil War veteran, of South Lyndeboro, will be formally arraigned on the charge of murder here today.

The three were brought here early today from Hillsborough County Jail in Manchester. They are John Doyle and L. H. Hazen of Milford, and F. P. Brigham of Worcester, Mass.

Decision to formally charge the trio with the slaying followed the report of Medical Referee Bernard G. Moran of Nashua, that the aged veteran had met his death during a combat. All three persist in their stories they were together the night of the slaying. Cram's body was found on the floor of his kitchen.

It has developed that a wallet containing $1,000, which the aged man was known to have had on him, is missing. The police maintain robbery was the motive for the slaying.

A fourth arrest is pending, that of a man who traveled six miles to visit the slaying scene shortly after report of the finding of the body was made. Also, a Nashua attorney, police assert, informed Inspector John McCarthy of that city that he could produce a witness who would testify he saw one of the accused three sneaking from a lodging house and going, in a machine, in the direction of South Lyndeboro.

LAUNDRY BAGS USEFUL LITTLE PRESENTS

By JOAN STUART

"I think I'll get some more things for the youngster, today," I told Doug. "Want to go with me again? You men always seem to get such a kick out of the toy departments."

"Say, Joan," was the answer, "I think I will at that. I've got some Christmas shopping of my own to do and I guess if I leave it until later, there either won't be any presents left to buy or I won't have any funds left to buy them with. Let's make it for tomorrow!"

That permitted me to go in and pick up some of the things I had seen and not had time to buy. There was a very fetching laundry bag made of yellow cotton, piped with red. A grinning Chinaman stamped in black near the top of the bag, had a "no checkee, no laundree" expression that gave me much amusement. I paid 79 cents for it and thought it would be very nice for one of the dozens of "remembrance" things that I had to give.

Of course, I was leaving the toys for the tour with Doug but I saw a cunning night water set that I knew would delight Chuck and serve a soothing purpose when the call for "water" came in the cold, dark hours of early morning.

The set was a tearful, long mournful eared hound dog made of glass and stencilled in colors. The dog served as container for the water and a small glass that fitted over his doggy crown, would just about hold one drink of water for a thirsty youngster. I was scanning the counter for more amusing things when a woman pushed me none too gently. I was rather indignant and turned to give her an icy glance.

"Oh, Joan Stuart, I didn't know it was you," she began.

"I suppose you'd have pushed harder if you had known," I reprimanded her. It was a girl I'd known for ages who was always in a hurry and always either pulling or pushing someone in her way.

"Well, I'm awfully sorry, but you know I've just two more things to buy and I thought I could do it here in about five minutes if no one got in my way. You know how I am when the real Christmas crowd begins poking about!"

"My dear, you should have started your Christmas shopping in June," I told her.

BRITIH SHIPS DUE IN HUB WITH MAHOGANY LOGS

Smashing her way through high seas and strong head winds, the British steamship Emlymian, with 1,300 mahogany logs aboard, wirelessed local agents of her probable arrival at this port on Saturday, ending her trip from the west coast of Africa.

The 5,000 ton cargo includes a large number of "sticks" weighing five tons each. The consignment, slated for Palmer and Parker Company, Charlestown lumber dealers, is the largest of its kind to reach this port in years.

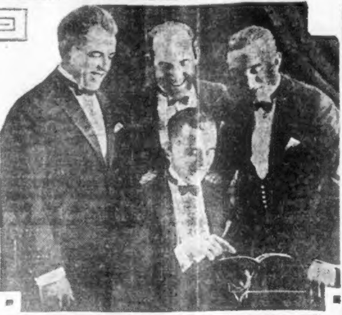
STAGE STARS TO APPEAR AT BENEFIT

"Lots of times we have to stay home from school until our dresses are washed, as my sisters and I have only one dress each," writes a 12-year-old Cambridge child in asking the Christmas Goodfellow Editor of the Boston Evening American to help her family at Christmas.

HELEN HAYS
The star of "What Every Woman Knows" at the Plymouth will appear at the benefit show at the Shubert next Sunday.



BELMONT FOUR ON PROGRAM
This breezy quartet will sing at the big benefit show for the Boston Evening American's Goodfellow Fund Sunday night. A number of other stars have offered their services to aid the needy to have a cheery Christmas.

Suppose YOU ar YOUR kiddies had to go to bed supperless because the pantry was empty! How about it, Christmas Goodfellow; do you think it would be a pleasant experience for your children or yourself? The answer is obvious, so why not follow up that good resolution you have made NOW and give this little Cambridge girl some of the things her little heart desires?

A CHILD'S APPEAL.

Here is her letter:

"I am a little girl of 12 years old. My mother is ill. She is deaf and it is hard for her to get work. I have to give all I earn doing errands for people to mother to buy coal. I have 3 sisters, 7, 8 and 10, and a brother 5 years old. He has no clothes to wear to school, and we have nothing warm to wear.

"Lots of times we have to stay home from school until our dresses are washed, as my sisters and I have only one dress each. My papa hasn't had a steady job for 8 months. He gets only a little money, helping for a day or two, and that goes to pay the rent.

"We would love to have some warm mittens, stockings and dresses, size 10 and 7, and my brother needs an overcoat. Mamma tells us we will have no Christmas this year, but we would all be so happy if we could have something good to eat, as we never have good things like other children. Please don't forget us.

When I grow up I will remember you, Santa and I will tell a story on Christmas day about you and how you helped us. We had no dinner on Thanksgiving day, but we were glad to have beans, and our mamma and papa. Lots of times we go to bed without any supper. Please give mamma a Christmas basket."

The full name and address of the writer of the above letter will be given to any Christmas Goodfellow who desires to extend a helping hand. Many similar letters are on file at the Boston Evening American office for the personal attention of those whose hearts beat right.

ROXBURY BOY'S LETTER.

If you cannot find time to care in person for one or more families on account of the Christmas rush which most people experience at this time of year, this newspaper will serve as your agent in caring for impoverished families if you contribute to the Christmas Goodfellow Fund. The Fund was established for that purpose so very busy folks, whose time is so limited that they cannot attend in person to such matters, may participate.

Read the following letter from a Roxbury boy named Robert:

"I am a little boy, 11 years old, and I am writing to ask you to please send us something for Christmas, as my father has been sick and there is no one working, and we won't have anything for Christmas. We are five, two girls, 7 and 9 years old, and three boys, 10 and 15, and myself. I am Robert, 11.

"Please give us something! Mother sometimes says she wishes she was dead, living like we are. I don't like to hear her say that, as she is a good mother to us. She is looking for work to help us out, as we have no good shoes. I pray every night for you to come to us, dear Santa, and when I get big and working I will help someone else. Please come and see us. We would like a good dinner."

Perhaps you would like to relieve the distress in this little fellow's family. If so, let us know.

STARS TO AID FUND.

Many principals of leading shows now playing at Boston theatres will participate in the concert and vaudeville show at the Shubert Theatre next Sunday evening for the benefit of the Christmas Goodfellow Fund. The following productions will be represented by some of the best talent connected with them. "Queen High," at the Wilbur, "Song of the Flame at the Shubert and "What Every Woman Knows" at the Plymouth.

Among those who will appear from these big attractions are Helen Hayes, Guy Roberts, Betty Byron, Phebe Bruno and Leonard St. Leo.

Others on the program are Mora, the "Mirthful Mystic"; John and Lola Daly, the Floyds, in unusual mental radio; Harry McGowan and company, song speedsters; the Cappuccio Trio; the Belmont Four; Happy Harmonists and Jack and Eddie McGinley in "The Tin Can Band."

Another big feature of the benefit performance will be the appearance of Adelyn Bushnell, popular leading lady of Castle Square Players, and Jerry Bradford, the male lead of the company. Miss Bushnell will add her personality to the performance by rendering "Suzanne," to which an accompaniment on the piano will be played by Mr. Bradford, her husband.

Other attractions are The Greenlaw Trio, instrumental noveltyists; Carl Moore and Billy Payne, radio entertainers; Walter Keylor, in "Fun at the Piano," Helen Cannon, society humoriste; Arthur Donovan, merry monologist; Mel Eastman, singing funster; Carolyn Harris Gomley, concert contralto, and a 12-piece orchestra from "Song of the Flame."

Two imported dolls attired in beautiful hand-crocheted clothing will be given away at the charity ball in new Elks Hotel ballroom, opposite Metropolitan Theatre, next Wednesday evening. These dolls are gifts of Miss Marion E. Gage of Kenmore road, Malden, who has been elected a Christmas Goodfellow because of her excellent contribution. The hand-made clothing in which these dolls are dressed represents many hours of joyous labor on the part of Miss Gage.

James J. Doherty, of No. 9 Mystic street, Charlestown, who is conducting an "Old Timers" dance in Winter Garden ballroom, City square, Charlestown, next Tuesday evening, reports a heavy sale of tickets for the event.

That happened at Atlantic City last Summer in the later part of July and the first part of August, when the American Detective Society was in convention at the Ambassador Hotel.

FOOLED DETECTIVES

"I was living in Atlantic City then, and I used to stroll through the lobby every day, mingling with the detectives. Not one of them gave me a second glance.

"I'll tell you another incident. On the day that Hearst's New York American printed the story about the finding of that trunk in New York I happened to be riding in the smoker of a train between New York and Harrisburg. Beside me sat a man who had a copy of the paper with my picture on the front page. Well, he and I discussed the McPherson case for half an hour or so, but it never seemed to occur to him to compare the [illegible] with [illegible]. In the last few months I have had many experiences like that."

A point blank question was put to Ormiston:

"Have you had any communication with Aimee Semple McPherson within the time you have been gone?"

"None whatever," he said. "And that is all I shall tell you on that subject until after I have consulted my attorney, Edward H. S. Martin, of Chicago."

Ormiston said that in selecting an attorney to represent him he simply used the classified telephone directory when he happened to be in Chicago on one of several trips to that city, and took the name at random. One purpose for which he wanted counsel was for indirect dealing with the editors of radio publications. He would send his manuscript to the lawyer, who would then submit it to the magazines.

"Of course, I write a lot of technical stuff about radio," he said, "but I also write some light fiction in which there is a radio background. It's a bit of fiction I was working on when you came to see me tonight.

Mrs. McPherson and others are accused of conspiring to defeat justice by falsely representing that Mrs. McPherson was in the hands of kidnapers when in reality she spent a part of her time with Ormiston at Carmel, Calif.

"Not in Least Concerned," Is Aimee's Own Comment

PAY YOUR DEBTS, HE SAYS.

"Pay off your debts [illegible] your debtors [illegible] advice of the [illegible] men. In discussing the [illegible] tion in the country, Mr. Babson said:

"The nation today is in a different position than ever before. During previous periods such as this, institutions and corporations have been over-extended while individuals have been fairly free from debt. This was due to the fact that before the days of [illegible] and instalment buying the individual did not owe much money.

"At the time of the last great panic less than 10 per cent of the people were in debt, while only a fraction of 1 per cent had anything taken away from them. Today institutions and corporations have a great surplus of funds but individuals are in debt. Where less than 10 per cent. of individuals owed money twenty years ago, probably [illegible]0 per cent. owe money today.

"The best way to prepare for 1927 is to keep doing business, to [illegible] sales, and to keep all employees, but to get out of debt. Whether you are a bull or a bear in 1927, you can well afford to reduce your indebtedness and get those who owe you to reduce theirs. No one thing would do New England so much good today as an Anti-Debt campaign. We have had all kinds of anti organizations, from Anti-Cigarette Leagues to Anti-Saloon Leagues, but one kind of league I would like to work upon with your Chamber of Commerce is an Anti-Debt League.

"Why a man after getting enough money to have reasonable independence, will go into personal debt and endorse notes just to get a little more money, is beyond my understanding. Why corporations reasonably successful will put out short-time notes or borrow so heavily that the bankers may at any time close down on them is also incomprehensible.

Sharkey Causes Strife Between Promoters of New York

JOHNNY BUCKLEY, manager of Jack Sharkey, today revealed the text of his contract with Humbert J. Fugazy which has caused a boxing war between Tex Rickard and Fugazy. The terms of the contract show that Fugazy's claim on Sharkey's services expires on February 1, 1927. A copy of the contract follows:

"September 28, 1926

"Mr. Humbert J. Fugazy
"No. 233 Broadway,
"New York, N. Y.

"Dear Sir

"This is to confirm our ourstanding to the effect that in consideration of your procuring for Jack Sharkey of Boston, Mass., a match with Harry Wills of New Yok City, to take place on or about October 12, 1926, I hereby agree that the said Jack Sharkey, whom I am managing, will not engage in any boxing contest in the State of New York excepting under your direction and control up to and including February 1, 1927.

"I, as manager of Jack Sharkey, will sign contracts pursuant to the boxing laws of the State of New York for any opponent whom you may procure at any time during the aforesaid period of time.

"This understanding is to take effect only in the event that Jack Sharkey reeeives the decision over Harry Wills.

"Very truly yours,
(Signed) "JOHN F. BUCKLEY."

Buckley also revealed that Sharkey signed to battle Jack Delaney for the Coney Island Stadium last Summer. He declares that after Delaney won from Berlenbach he refused to go through with his contract to box Sharkey. The New York Boxing Commission then released Sharkey from his contract with the Coney Island Stadium. Buckley adds that Sharkey is willing to box Delaney at any time.

"Sharkey has always fought all-comers and defeated them," said Buckley, "and there is no reason why he should not take on Delaney who at times has had trouble beating middleweights like Allentown Joe Gans and George Robinson."

Bay State Golfers Get New Handicaps

The Calkins system of handicapping, almost wholly in vogue throughout the country, will be supplanted in Massachusetts, and probably in all New England, by the Massachusetts system. All Bay State golfers therefore will find themselves next year with new handicap ratings.

Under the Massachusetts rating par for each hole is based on the length, hazards and topography of the hole. In most cases length alone is the determining factor. The M. G. A. feels that if the Calkins system is employed golfers will be disproportionately benefited.

The Massachusetts handicap will be one or two points lower than the Calkins method, but this will not handicap local players in competition with outsiders, for a three handicap, say, under the M. G. A. method, would equal a five handicap under the Calkins system.

But the elimination series is the true method of developing the outstanding challenger for the title," Rickard said.

Now the experts will all tell you that a hook is better than a slice, because a hook can be cured, whereas the treatment of slice is long drawn out, indefinite and painful.

Boston Evening American to Print Story of Jack Sharkey's Career

JACK SHARKEY, sensational Boston heavyweight, who has been signed by Tex Rickard to fight Gene Tunney for the world's title in New York on September 13 of next year, has written the story of his remarkable life for the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

It reads like fiction. Not even the tale of Tunney can surpass this saga of Sharkey's for HUMAN APPEAL, BATTLING AGAINST ODDS, and FIXEDNESS OF PURPOSE. Jack tells of the course of his ambition from boyhood days, through his service in the Navy, to his spectacular rise to fame, which culminated in his summary disposition of the Senegambian Threat—Harry Wills.

BEGIN THIS GREAT STORY IN MONDAY'S BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

Knocks out that "knock"

WORN MOTORS TURN YOUNG AGAIN

Is your motor showing signs of age? There's spirited youth for it in the pumps labeled "Atlantic Ethyl Gasoline." . . . Renewed energy that carries you back to the days when your car was but a colt with barely a thousand miles behind it. . . . Fresh power and pep such as you never dreamt possible without a thorough motor overhaul!

Is your motor badly carboned? Atlantic Ethyl Gasoline not only ends carbon troubles, but it actually delivers a still heftier punch where carbon has increased the compression by reducing the size of the combustion chamber.

Does your motor knock badly? Atlantic Ethyl Gasoline completely "knocks the knock" out of your motor and out of your mind . . . you forget there ever was such a thing as a fuel knock.

Do you like a frisky, crack-o'-the-whip, eager-to-go motor fuel? Atlantic Ethyl Gasoline will give you the thrill of your life!

Atlantic Ethyl Gasoline is the unbeatable combination of the sensational new Atlantic Gasoline and the famous Ethyl Brand of Anti-Knock Compound developed by General Motors Research Laboratories. Three cents more per gallon . . . and three loud cheers when your foot touches the throttle. At Atlantic pumps and service stations most everywhere.

Now especially adjusted to winter driving

With the coming of cold weather the gasoline content of Atlantic Ethyl Gasoline is made more volatile. It vaporizes readily at low temperatures—making it just as remarkable for easy starting as for power and motor smoothness.

Two Camps for Giants | Sensible Spring Idea

McGRAW TO TRY NEW TRAINING PLAN

JOHN McGRAW and his prosperous New York Giants are going to try the double training camp idea. The inhabitants of the Polo Grounds will work out for a month at Sarasota, Fla. and then hop over to St. Augustine for a final ten days. Baseball men have been considering this system for a number of years. Teams that train in the blazing sun of Florida come into the cold April of the north and fall apart. It's torrid in Sarasota in the month of March. That ain't maybe, as the boys say. Considerably cooler over at St. Augustine, where a soothing breeze comes in occasionally from the somewhat broad Atlantic. The young athletes can boil out at Sarasota, get in shape, and then ramble across the State and find a slight change in temperature. They will linger at the oldest city in the South until April 1, and then work gradually north. They play the Senators on the way up, stopping off in Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginias. This program should acclimate them gradually and bring them into the large city ready for whatever winds may blow. It's sensible and should not be much more expensive than the usual way of parking in one burning spot and then jumping north over night to blizzards and frost and grippe and pneumonia.

Nick Flatley

This will also give the real estaters in the rattlesnake belt a chance to do some more bidding. The boys in the South and the lower West Coast can buy up the teams for the first part of the training. Then the chaps in the North and on the East Coast can bribe them to come on over and put on the finishing touches.

Spring training has come to be a matter of going where the most money is offered or can be made. The baseball part has been rather lost sight of in consideration of the gate.

Grid Coaches Eager for Drastic Changes and a Brown star of years ago, and of Milton Ghee, former star Dartmouth quarterback. Here are the [illegible]

The elimination of tie scores in football would be beneficial if this elimination actually reflected the comparative strength of the teams. If, however, ties were eliminated by some technical method of scoring which had nothing to do with the strength of the teams, it would be very unfortunate.

A clear-cut decision is always more satisfactory than a tie score, but I do not think it would add to the popularity of football if tie scores were rendered less frequent by technical changes in the rules which did not reflect the comparative strength of the teams.

The try for point after touchdown now seems to be the most unpopular play in the game and, of course, the tendency of this play is to eliminate tie scores, which seems to show that the elimination is not an end in itself if it must be gained by unconvincing methods.

The playing of an extra period is to my mind unthinkable for obvious reasons.

Ghee is an advocate of the abolishment of the kick after [illegible]

[illegible] expressed [illegible] to the deadlock [illegible]

I favor the elimination of tie scores and I think that football would be more [illegible] if the tie scores could be eliminated, but I do not think extra periods is the proper remedy as sixty minutes is long enough for any football game.

The one remedy I would suggest to eliminate tie scores would be to give the team that gains the most yardage by rushing and forward passing the decision.

Coach Glenn F. Thistlewaite of the Northwestern [illegible] is absolutely opposed to any change in the rules affecting [illegible] games. He said: "Tie games do not make the game less interesting. [illegible] a great game that there should be an opportunity for glory to [illegible]"

Thistlewaite is a wholesome altruist and his opinion of the game is a valuable contribution to the football literature of the era.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT THE RAVAGES OF TIME

You are worried because age is [illegible] its marks on you.

Your mirror shows sagging [illegible] eyes [illegible] sunken and lusterless [illegible] and your face takes on the [illegible] as you look at yourself.

The worst of it is that you carry [illegible] impression with you all day long and thus prevent any change for the better which might come if you would cheer up and take heart.

All these down-in-the-mouth looks come from habitual mourning over something, and habit makes the dents.

As long as you feel all right you have no right to ruin your health and your happiness by regretting the passage of time.

Of course you are growing older—what do you expect?

It may make you uneasy sometimes, but if you keep busy you will grow old gracefully and gradually, and your flight will not be so tragic or seem so dreadful if you have been leading up to it cheerfully.

Keep your heart and your mind on helpful things and you will slip into the next world with courage.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A DIPLOMATIC RELATION

By Eudora R. Richardson

CAMERON SATTERFIELD looked down upon the girl whose bright hair seemed to him to reflect more light at the [illegible] than the fire gave out. His features [illegible] patrician, [illegible] never really handsome, were [illegible] irritation expressed [illegible] nervous working of the [illegible] hand that hung [illegible].

"Katherine, [illegible] absurd," he said.

The girl's lips [illegible] but her eyes remained serious.

"Why can't you see," she asked, "that if I marry you without your mother's public stamp of approval life can be made intolerable for you—for me?"

"And you think my sister's debut means so much?"

"Everything, Cam," Katherine replied. "The girl [illegible] told me that a thousand [illegible] are being engraved. If the [illegible] and if you and I married afterwards announce our engagement—oh, well, the thing is preposterous."

"If you aren't invited," Cameron encountered, "of course I shan't go to the party. I'll not see mother again until I return from New York next week, but she already knows how I feel about her [illegible] dear, your [illegible] has nothing to do [illegible] seems to me at the [illegible] Dorothy."

The gleaming gold head [illegible] on the arm of Katherine's [illegible]. A quick [illegible] sob brought [illegible] to his knees by Katherine's [illegible] arms about her, his lips [illegible] her hair.

"Sweetheart," he [illegible] "somehow it will be [illegible]"

An [illegible] was alone in the [illegible] she dropped into a [illegible] the spacious old sofa and sat with her hands clasped tight about one knee. At last, her jaw squared with a new firmness.

"I did drop my memo pad into the pocket of Cam's dinner coat," she whispered. "He leaves tomorrow for a business trip, and he will not [illegible] that coat with him."

The next day from her office Katherine called Cam's number on the phone. It was easier surrounded by the symbols of her work as [illegible] writer on a daily paper where she was of necessity detached to do a difficult thing impersonally. Though the hand that held the receiver trembled Katherine knew that her voice was quite cool and businesslike.

"Mrs. Satterfield," she said, when that august lady had been summoned. "This is Katherine Cabell. Last night I stupidly left my memo pad in the pocket of Cam's dinner coat. Will you mail it to me at the Gazette, please? I wouldn't trouble you except that it has all my business appointments."

There was a few seconds of silence. Then a restrained voice assured Katherine that the pad would be sent at once. Indeed, Katherine was so utterly miserable that she wondered if ever again she could be happy, no matter how successful her scheming might be.

It was the night before his sister's debut that Katherine saw Cameron Satterfield for the first time since giving him her irrevocable decision. When he 'phoned her of his return Katherine detected in his voice a note akin to despair. Then he came and held her in his arms as though he feared she might fly through the walls and leave him desolate.

"Kathy," he moaned. "They haven't invited you. I'm moving my things. I have no more to do with them."

Katherine threw back her head and looked into Cam's face with big starry eyes.

"But I am invited. See the card," she exulted.

Cameron picked up the envelope, examined minutely its address and its contents.

"My mother's handwriting," he murmured, his face wistful in his perplexity, "and tonight she told me that she had not sent you a card—that my father would turn over in his grave if she did."

"Perhaps she was joking," Katherine suggested sweetly.

"Oh, dearest," Cam countered, "my mother never jokes. May I have this card?"

"But don't lose it," Katherine smiled. "Later perhaps I may need it as—as evidence."

The next day Katherine did not go to the office. It was as a matter of fact her one day off in the newspaper seven. Early Cameron phoned to say that he would call for her that night at nine. Reassured by his tone, Katherine spent the day preparing to be quite as beautiful as the debutante Dorothy. Cam's corsage of orchids and valley lilies was accompanied by a jubilant little note from Cam. Then came Mrs. Satterfield's phone message—a capitulation as complete as it was amazing. Yet, Katherine knew that it was like Mrs. Satterfield to make her defeat appear as a gracious condescension. Now she urged Katherine to receive with Dorothy and her—since, she added, the interesting engagement would so soon be announced. Katherine almost wept with joy and petty remorse, but weeping at this hour was not to be considered.

When Cam arrived that night, he looked in his evening clothes almost as handsome as did patrician. He held Katherine in his arms until she warned him that her flowers were not made of silk, like the shimmering dress she wore.

"Gosh, girl!" he said. "A mirac[illegible] has happened. Mother doesn't re[illegible] member sending that invitation [illegible] until [illegible] showed her her own handwriting. Now she thinks a guilty subconscience drove her to address the envelope, and she's being a real sport."

Katherine laughed as she pinched Cam's cheeks in the bestowal of a butterfly kiss.

"She didn't send it, darling," she explained. "I did. The girl in the engraver's let me have the invitation. I got your mother to mail me the memo pad I left on purpose in your dinner jacket, and I copied my name and address in the handwriting of the package. I learned the trick from a reporter who used to be a detective. It's easy to copy anyone's hand by drawing the words Chinese fashion from right to left. Then your own letter formation never appears. Do you hate me as a base deceiver?"

"I love you as a miracle girl," Cam replied. "Now that mother has given in, she'll be an angel to both of us forever."

So saying, Cameron Satterfield proceeded to make it absurdly hap[illegible] for Katherine to [illegible].

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THIS is the time of the year when thousands of men are giving their girls the air until after Christmas. Any man who loves his sweetheart from January to November has a right to get the last month off for good behavior.

BUT the women don't care, most of them are breaking in new fellows for the holidays.

THE average girl isn't interested in your past, what she wants is your presents.

ONE man was so crazy about a dame last year that he spent his father's last cent on her.

HE almost got into trouble because he took fifty dollars out of the bank and the bank discovered it.

BUT he was too smart for them. He swiped a hundred and twenty-five more, paid his fifty dollars back and had seventy-five left for himself.

THE next day his dough was all gone. He finally had to go to a pawn shop. He believed in doing his Christmas hocking early.

HE soaked his watch to buy his fiancee a present and then pawned the present to get his watch out.

HE went to her house on Christmas Eve and put the ticket in her stocking.

BUT he was so tight he wanted Santa Claus to pay the interest.

ONE guy said he never bought his girl anything in his life. He loves her spiritually but not financially.

SHE doesn't expect a present. He says if he ever brought her a gift, she'd drop dead, and he's continually keeping her alive.

HE doesn't want to be arrested for homicide.

HIS heart is as big as a hotel, but it's been padlocked.

HIS wallet has stickers all over it: "Do not open until after Christmas."

HE'S so tight that instead of taking a street car to his girl's house on Christmas Eve, he'll probably wait and ride over with Santa Claus.

IF he had a million dollars in greenbacks he wouldn't give a microbe enough room to sit down.

HE and his brother are the two fellows who are trying to have Christmas change places with leap year.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

LOTS of men who seem irresistibly fascinating against the background of a glittering jazz-palace, would bore you to death in one day in a country house.

A perfectly trained husband is one who folds up his newspapers and gathers up his ashes when he hears his wife winding the clock.

It's awfully hard for a wife to prove "cruelty" in a divorce trial, when her chief objection to her husband is the way he pulls down the shades and goes around putting out the electric lights, after her.

* * *

Forty-five is the dangerous age of man, when he is just young enough to long for a new wife and not quite old enough to realize that he will soon need a "settled woman" to nurse him.

* * *

What no modern woman can understand is that aboriginal thrill of admiration she feels for a man when he stops trying to pacify her and gets good and wrathy.

When a man has to ask the taxi-driver what the fare is, you can be perfectly sure that he hasn't been driving with his wife.

Love is a comedy in three acts. In the first the man makes a fool of himself; in the second, the woman makes a fool of herself—and in the last, one of them makes a fool of the other.

* * *

A pay-envelope may be morally and financially sustaining, but nothing has yet been discovered so spiritually comforting to cry on as a man's shoulder.

MORE ANSWERS ARE GIVEN

By MARTHA LEE.

Today we come to questions No. 16 and 17 in Martha Lee's Homemakers' Contest.

"Shellacked" is the correct answer to No. 16, which was, "Which is more easily injured by water—a shellacked or varnished floor?"

No. 17, "Should soup meat be put on to cook in cold or hot water?" is correctly answered by, "Cold water."

In soup-making, the purpose is, of course, to extract all the juices from the meat into the broth, and cold water will accomplish this. Hot water would seal the juices in the meat.

Watch tomorrow for the answers to No. 18 and No. 19. Each day from now until the final awards are made in the Martha Lee Homemakers' Contests, the answers will be given to two or more of the simple Contest questions.

Of course, you can understand that we cannot publish the longer answers to such questions as No. 20, No. 22 and No. 30 until the judging is ended and the final awards are made.

The correct answers to our contest questions were compiled by Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, editor of "American Cookery," the Boston Cooking School magazine and author of many books on cookery.

HAPPINESS is brought home to you by reading "Gifts for the Home." You'll find them in the "Christmas Gift Suggestions" Columns of the Classified Section.

DX REPORT

By BARNEY

From what we heard up to 10 o'clock last evening we judge that it was one of the best nights this year. Stations could be heard on every mark on our dials and, although we only listened to the loudest stations through the cone speaker, there was very little fading and no static. The steadiest and loudest stations were: CHYC, Montreal; WPG, Atlantic City; WICC, Bridgeport; WADC, Akron; WEBJ, WJZ, WPCH, New York; WLS, WORD, WLIB, WJAZ, Chicago; WGY, Schenectady; WRC, Washington, and WEAA, Columbus.

RADIO TO GET CHILDREN TO SCHOOL ON TIME

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 9 (A.P.).—The radio will soon be used to get boys and girls to school on time, if a plan proposed by the Hartford principals club is successful.

The club has adopted a resolution asking radio station WTIC to broadcast the correct time at about nine o'clock each night, in order that the parents of children can set their clocks right and reduce as far as possible lateness due to this cause.

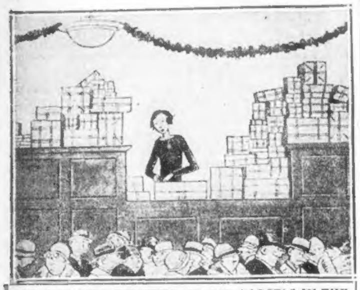
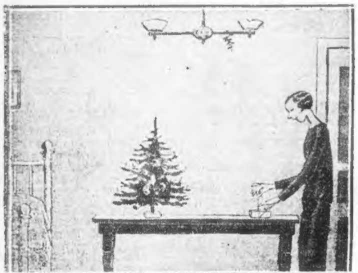
Think of Her at Christmas

Do Your Shopping Early, Do It Cheerfully



THE GIRL WHO WRAPPED UP 48,947 PARCELS IN THE WEEKS BEFORE CHRISTMAS—



AND ON CHRISTMAS DAY HAS ONE OF HER OWN TO UNWRAP.

These two pictures from Charles Dana Gibson's Life present in a humorous way a truth to be remembered.

Fortunately, the girl in the big store is NOT worked to death.

In these days she has the regulation hours. And she makes decent wages for the work done, and can look forward to as good a Christmas as the average.

But this is necessarily the season of mental OVERWORK and nervous strain for all that are connected with the distribution of Christmas goods, from the man at the head of the great enterprise to the girl that wraps the bundle, or the man that hands it in at the door.

Include in your Christmas presents CONSIDERATION FOR OTHERS. Make the work of the people in the shops and stores at least no harder than it must be.

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS first, that you may have some idea of what you want before you go out to shop. Then go with your mind as nearly as possible made up and buy as EARLY, QUICKLY and GOOD-NATUREDLY as you can.

Remember that the little difficulties YOU have in shopping the person waiting on you has EVERY MINUTE of every day.

If you are tired, he or she is a thousand times MORE tired.

If a strain is put on YOUR patience, a hundred strains are put on the patience of the salespeople and the store managers.

Consider others, do that which requires conscientiousness, sympathy and a little effort.

SHOP EARLY.

SHOP CHEERFULLY AND COURTEOUSLY.

But Asia Won't

No Ropes Made of Sand

Manuel L. Quezon, Filipino statesman and President of the Philippine Senate, says that unless the white races treat the Asiatics more politely a world war is coming, greater, more terrible than the big war for which the world is now paying.

Asia he thinks "will achieve unity of purpose," then wipe up the white race. Heaven save us.

But Asia won't. It it COULD unite, three hundred million British subjects in India would achieve unity of purpose and wipe up the handful of British soldiers, not more than 100,000, that police the country.

When he speaks about the great war Mr. Quezon contradicts himself. He says we should set the Philippines free, and that "there is no danger of Japan seizing the islands; Japan will attempt no new aggressions in Asia because she already feels too keenly her unpopularity in China and elsewhere among her near neighbors."

That, fortunately, is the answer to the yellow peril so far as a united Asia is concerned.

Asia is divided by hatreds older and more bitter than any known in Europe.

Every Asiatic race hates something or somebody IN ASIA, more than it hates anything in Europe or America.

One Missing Detail

The Paris savant who suggests that Uncle Sam require defaulting debtor nations to devote uncollected or cancelled sums to general education in science fails to explain how. That may be a minor detail, but its absence is provoking.

LADY ASTOR'S VIEWS ON DRY LAW

By DR. FRANK CRANE

LADY ASTOR the other day, without pointing at anybody, gave Nicholas Murray Butler and Senator Wadsworth of New York something to think about.

She pointed out the fact that all this movement toward prohibition was really and at bottom a movement to remove the satisfactions of man from a physical basis and put them upon a moral or spiritual basis.

Brushing aside for the moment all questions of how it is done and whether prohibition is effective or not and all that sort of thing, we ask ourselves what is the object of prohibition?

The object simply is this: We have gone around for many years picking up victims of the saloon and taking care of them. We have had institutions for looking after intoxicated people. We have had poor houses and orphan asylums for their victims.

It suddenly occurred to us to do away with the evil which causes all these calamities.

The prohibition laws we have may not be the wisest nor the best, but at least they are an effort in the right direction. The prohibition law is on the side of the angels and those who are seeking to break it down or nullify it might do well to keep this in mind.

A great moral conviction is back of prohibition, and a moral conviction never yet went backward.

Odds and Ends of the Town

LONESOME

SOME pretty lonesome officers from the Hanover and Milk Street Stations are making their rounds near SCOLLAY SQUARE these days. The "harness men" were good friends of the day and night reporters at police headquarters. The reporters gave them many a helpful tip when they were breaking in as "the new force" back in 1919. Many a downtown officer today owes his chevrons to friendly headquarters reporters. With POLICE HEADQUARTERS located in the BACK BAY now, the MILK and HANOVER STREET men will see them only occasionally.

IN LINE.

The election of a president for the CITY COUNCIL next month will be no less exciting than that of former years. While there is yet a chance that PRESIDENT KEENE will claim the chair for another year, it is now generally predicted that he will step aside and leave the office open for a free-for-all. Among those prominently mentioned for the job, which makes its incumbent practically "vice-mayor" of the city, are WILSON, DOWLING and PARKMAN, Republicans; and McGRATH, WARD and HEFFERNAN, Democrats.

TOO STRONG.

PRESIDENT CHARLES G. KEENE of the CITY COUNCIL has outlined a plan by which every member of the city governing body will at some time or other preside at a council meeting. The first councillor to be so honored was ROBERT GARDNER WILSON, JR., of DORCHESTER, who carried on the meeting in a highly creditable manner. The only mistake he made was to break the official gavel in announcing a vote.

GOOD NATURED.

Everybody in the EAST CAMBRIDGE courts knows "BIG BILL" CLEARY and "LITTLE JOE" CLANCY, reporters, whose good nature and humorous knocks and grinds on the "fellow with the fresh cigar," keep court attaches good natured. "LES" AINSLEY, high sachem of the courthouse scribes, is reported to be conferring daily with SHERIFF FAIRBAIRN to have high-backed chairs installed in the courthouse press room for CLEARY and CLANSY because of their deside to "sit in" with the "big ones."

PRAISED.

When it comes to running down and arresting criminals POLICE CHIEF JOHN F. WELCH of MEDFORD cannot be excelled. His alertness in assisting in the apprehension of HERBERT GLEASON, alleged slayer of James Monagle, storekeeper at No. 577A Main street, MEDFORD, won him great praise in that city.

Life's illusions are giving P. NICHOLAS PETROCELLI, erstwhile ASSISTANT CORPORATION COUNSEL, food for thought. Though practicing criminal law a short while he has come in contact with cases that demonstrate to him the need of youth following the straight and narrow path.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEO has decided to kill herself. Don't be alarmed. Theo decides to kill herself on the average of once a month.

Is her plight then so desperate? No, her plight is not desperate at all. Theo is a bright, pretty, healthy young married woman of twenty-three. Her husband is devoted to her. Her child adores her. Her relatives are most affectionate and considerate. She has no dark secret in her past—no menace in her future. She works, but not too hard.

Then why this frightful suicidal mania? It isn't mania. It's a deliberate scheme to attract attention. And get her own way.

Theo craves attention as a hop-head craves show. Attention and excitement. Her quiet family life does not supply much excitement. Nor do her simple, matter-of-fact folks stage many pageants for Theo's benefit. In fact, they treat her just as they treat the rest of the furniture. That is the way they, themselves, want to be treated. But it isn't the way Theo wants to be treated.

Theo wants fireworks. Lots of fireworks. She is young, full of restless, clamorous egotism. She wants Special Recognition. She gets it in various ways. She pouts and peeves. She has Nervous Spells. She gets her feelings hurt. But best of all she decides to commit suicide. That's her trump card.

Gas Episode.

Of course she doesn't stop with the mere threat. She always sets the stage with a great deal of care. There was the Carbolic Acid episode. They found her moaning on the floor with that terrible acid spilled all over the front of her nightgown and a perfectly good blister on the inside of her thumb, where it wouldn't show.

Everyone nearly died of suspense while they telephoned for the ambulance and rushed her to the Emergency Hospital. They could hardly believe their ears when the doctor said she hadn't swallowed a drop.

And there was the Gas Episode. She used simply pounds of absorbant cotton, stuffing the cracks. And then, a few minutes before Walter was due home she turned it on. Walter will never forget that hideous ten minutes when he hammered on the door and smelled the seeping of the deadly fumes. Theo had quite a sick headache after that.

And of course there was the time she fell into the river. That didn't do much harm for she'd taken care to wear her oldest shoes and underwear. But it was frightfully hard on the family.

It's always frightfully hard on the family. But they certainly do come across with service after Theo pulls a Suicide. And Service is what Theo is after.

Theo isn't a rare or exceptional case. There are Theos in every clan. They don't always pull suicides but they have their own peculiar technique and it's a wow.

There are the Theos who 'disappear." No newspaper day is complete without its Mysterious Disappearance and the inevitable background of weeping relatives, frantic husband and one or more bewildered babies wondering why "mama doesn't come home." Usually Mama has taken the bus to Cousin Kate's and is enjoying a delightful day or two of country life. While the family drags the swimming pool and haunts the morgue.

"I'M GOING TO KILL MUSELF!!"
ONE WAY TO GET RESULTS
ELSIE ROBINSON 12-1

Sinking Spells.

Then there's the Theo who has Sinking Spells. Heart Attacks. These, of course, are somewhat inferior to Disappearances in their dramatic effect, but they have this advantage—the Heart Attacks can take in all the fun while it's going on. Few things will make a stolid family move livelier than a nice, timely attack of Angina.

Just now, Angina is going pretty strong. Winter's coming on and Santa may need a little prodding as a reminder that Lovely Ladies Need Fur Coats. You can hardly refuse a fur coat to a pet wife who's apt to die on your hands in her Next Bad Turn.

So it goes. Methods differ but they all get results. And results are what the Theos are after.

Vacuum and Gravitation

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"SUPPOSE that in the center of a vacuum one yard square is a piece of gold six inches square; will the gold remain suspended, or will the attraction of the earth pull it to the bottom?

"In case the earth does exert an influence upon the gold, what would be the result of the following supposition? Let the attraction of the earth be non-existent, and place another piece of gold two inches square half way between the first gold and the edge of the vacuum; will the large piece exert a pull on the smaller piece?—J. I.

Gravitation is not stopped by a vacuum, or by what we regard as a vacuum. Exhaust a closed chamber to the very last attainable degree, and still gravitation acts through it, and in it with undiminished force.

Just so it acts with undiminished force through a plenum, or what we regard as a plenum, for instance a mass of gold. So it acts through the whole earth. Two huge balls of lead placed at opposite ends of the earth's diameter would draw upon one another with precisely the same force as if the earth were not between them.

At the same time of course, ooth would experience the attraction of the earth's center of gravity. There is no hiding away from gravitation and no means of shielding it off.

So your six-inch cube of gold in the centre of your cubic yard of vacuum would be drawn to the bottom, or to the earthward side, just as if it were out in the open air.

In your second case, we must consider that if the earth were deprived of the power of attraction, undoubtedlyy everything of which the earth is composed would also lose that power, including the gold in the vacuum, so that there would be no attraction between the two pieces.

If you imagine the gold in the vacuum chamber to retain the power of gravitation after the earth has lost it, then the two pieces of gold would very slowly draw one another together. But even when the earth draws them both, they still have the same tendency to be drawn together.

The celebrated "Cavendish experiment' 'demonstrates this by showing the attraction upon one another of lead balls, the amount of which, compared with the earth's attraction upon the same mass, gives the ratio of the weight of the whole eadth to that of the balls.

Since by Newton's law gravitation is a property pertaining to the very nature of matter, it would not be logical to suppose that the earth alone could be deprived of it. And it would be, if possible, still less logical under, Einstein's theory, which assumes that gravitation is an inherent property of "space-time" or of the "universe" made up of space and time.
